

Hello, I am Muppana Chiranjeevi from Vizianagaram, Andhra Pradesh. I started my career as a Systems Engineer at Infosys and have been with the organization for over 4.5 years. I am currently working as a Senior Systems Engineer.

Coming to the answer,

---

One strong example of effective teamwork was during a critical client enhancement project where I collaborated closely with developers, QA engineers, business analysts, and support teams in an Agile environment. My responsibilities included understanding business requirements, participating in requirement and solution discussions, preparing test scenarios, executing test cases, and validating the implemented changes.

Throughout the project, I maintained regular communication with team members to clarify requirements, resolve issues, and ensure that project deliverables met quality standards. When defects were identified, I worked closely with developers and business analysts to analyse the root causes, verify fixes, and ensure smooth progress within sprint timelines.

Through effective communication, knowledge sharing, and collaboration, our team successfully delivered the enhancement on schedule while meeting the client's expectations. This experience strengthened my understanding of the importance of teamwork, accountability, and clear communication in achieving successful project outcomes.

---

I am interested in consulting because it offers opportunities to work on diverse projects, solve business challenges, and interact directly with clients.

Through my experience as a Systems Engineer, I have developed strong analytical, technical, and problem-solving skills while working with cross-functional teams.

What attracts me to consulting is the opportunity to understand client requirements, provide effective solutions, and create value for businesses. I enjoy working closely with clients, understanding their challenges, and helping them achieve their goals.

I believe my technical expertise, communication skills, adaptability, and collaborative mindset will help me contribute effectively and grow in a consulting career.

---

I believe building trust and rapport is essential for a successful client relationship. My approach would be to first understand the client's goals, expectations, and challenges by actively listening and asking relevant questions.

I would focus on maintaining clear and transparent communication, providing regular updates, and setting realistic expectations from the beginning.

I believe trust is built through consistent actions, so I would ensure that commitments are delivered on time and with high quality. I would also be responsive to client concerns, proactively address issues, and demonstrate professionalism and accountability in every interaction.

By maintaining open communication, delivering quality work, and consistently meeting commitments, I can build credibility and establish a strong long-term relationship with the client.